If there was ever a time one could purchase genetics that have stood the test now is it! This program is designed to produce cows to raise a calf every year and to sell herd bulls. The legacy of this cow herd goes back five generations. Hard work and persistence with a commitment to the Shorthorn breed and preserving the legacy started with two registered heifers in 1916. We don't know what tomorrow holds, but we do know these cows work in our pasture and for breeders and future generations. We are once again thankful to have the Gilman family be part of the Family Legacies Sale this year. Special thanks to Collin Cory who is around here for the day in and day out routine!

- Dale & Nate Studer

Once again we are very excited to be a part of The Family Legacies Sale put on by the Studer Family. The cattle representing these herds are the type that can go out and work for you, but yet make your neighbors turn their head as they drive by. The bred heifers are from the heart of the herd, top to bottom they are uniform and bred to be the practical kind. As you can see both programs feature several cattle sired by bulls of their own prefix. I feel that speaks volumes for the confidence we have in our programs. Whether you're looking to inject different genetics into your herd with a bred female, or a junior looking for a 4-H project, there is something for everyone. Don't hesitate to reach out about any of the lots in the sale. The newest generation here will continue to carry on the Shorthorn Family Legacy.

Good cattle never go out of style ... I remember the day that Robert Alden looked at Studers Pretender as a calf, there was a vision and the rest is history Pretender shows up three times in these two females alone. Move forward 20 years and Studers Taylor Made is upholding the legacy. However, these two heifers are not just offered as a story line, they are living proof of what these two sires have represented over the last three decades and the positive impact they will provide moving forward. Superior functionality, flawless design, proven performance. Confidence is a journey, not a destination. These two females are leaders in that journey.
